

Naomi Williams

Grandad

Naomi is a 21-year-old documentary photographer from Nottingham, currently studying at the University of the West of England, Bristol. Starting her career in 2016, she studied Photography at Nottingham College. Naomi found a passion for photography and began capturing live music and events, which then led to an interest in documentary and portraiture.

In her ongoing project, 'Grandad', she photographs her Grandad's life, communicating his past and present experiences through his unique way of living. She began the project in June 2020, after the first UK lockdown and the images show the reality and loneliness of living alone during a global pandemic. Influenced by Latoya Ruby Frazier's series, 'The Notion of Family', Naomi wanted to create her own personal project by turning the camera towards her family members.
